

Company policy

- Quality and environmental protection are key requirements that govern our customers' satisfaction and our resultant competitiveness, closely linked to the company's economic success.
- To achieve our zero-defect targets, we work by clearly defined principles. All customer-specific requirements must be carefully coordinated and complied with.
- We operate an active information and communication relationship with employees, suppliers, customers, government bodies, residents, and the general public. We pay careful attention to information security in relation to internal and external data, figures, and systems to maintain confidentiality and ensure and safeguard ongoing operations.
- Our responsible and socially aware conduct in society is founded upon a commitment to observe and comply with all relevant legislative provisions, standards, and customer requirements.
- Moreover, we wish to save energy, improve our workplace procedures continuously, and avoid adverse environmental impacts.
- Continuous improvements combined with innovations ensure our competitiveness and our consistently successful track record.
- The promotion of employee satisfaction and awareness of quality, environment, energy, and information security, health, and workplace safety constitutes a management duty at all times and throughout the entire company.
- Our employees are kept informed and trained about the significance of their activities regarding quality, the environment, and information security.
- In the context of our social responsibility, we pay particularly careful attention to product safety, the sustainable conservation of resources, and the minimization of potential risks for all parties involved and the environment.
- We are committed to providing safe working conditions. We promote the health of our employees and provide them with programs appropriately tailored to suit their needs.
- Mutual respect, openness and the recognition and valuing of differences are an integral component of the corporate culture at VENTREX. Therefore, we are committed to recognize and appreciate diversity. The VENTREX ethos is to tap to the fullest extent all the potential inherent in this variety and the individuality that results from it.
